Fayette County Recorder of Deeds posted in Across Fayette.

The transition to our official .gov site is already complete, and the SSL certificate is fully valid and matched to the domain. The brief warning some people saw was simply due to browsers caching the old certificate during the switch. There is no misconfiguration, no spoofing risk, and nothing unsafe about the site.

.gov domains require federal verification before they can even go live, so the idea that the Recorder of Deeds website is insecure or untrustworthy is incorrect. Everything is active, secure, and working exactly as it should. If anyone still sees a warning, a simple browser refresh or clearing cache fixes it, since it is pulling an outdated copy.

Our office remains committed to secure, accurate, and transparent public access at all times. Dec 08, 2025

Happy New Year As we step into a brand new year, it's a time to reflect on where we've been and refocus on where we're going. The past year brought challenges, lessons, and victories, and through it all we were reminded how important faith, family, community, and service truly are. May this new year bring renewed purpose, stronger communities, honest leadership, and blessings for every family. Let's move forward with gratitude for what we've learned, courage to stand for what's right, and hope for what's ahead. Here's to a year of growth, accountability, and putting people first. Wishing everyone a healthy, happy, and prosperous New Year.

The transition to our official .gov site is already complete, and the SSL certificate is fully valid and matched to the domain. The brief warning some people saw was simply due to browsers caching the old certificate during the switch. There is no misconfiguration, no spoofing risk, and nothing unsafe about the site.

.gov domains require federal verification before they can even go live, so the idea that the Recorder of Deeds website is insecure or untrustworthy is incorrect. Everything is active, secure, and working exactly as it should. If anyone still sees a warning, a simple browser refresh or clearing cache fixes it, since it is pulling an outdated copy.

Our office remains committed to secure, accurate, and transparent public access at all times. Dec 08, 2025

Today we pause to remember the 2,403 Americans who lost their lives on December 7, 1941 at Pearl Harbor. It was a morning that changed our nation forever. A day of sudden loss, unimaginable courage, and a call to defend the freedoms we hold dear. We honor the sailors, soldiers, Marines, and civilians who faced the attack with strength and resolve. We remember the heroes who ran toward danger to save others. And we reflect on the families who carried the weight of that day for the rest of their lives. Pearl Harbor is a reminder that the cost of freedom is never free. It is carried by brave men and women who stand ready to protect this nation. May we honor their memory not only today, but every day by living with gratitude, unity, and a commitment to the values they defended. We will never forget December 7, 1941.

National Miners Day Today we honor the men and women whose hard work built our communities from the ground up. Miners shaped the backbone of Fayette County. Their labor powered our mills, heated our homes, and fueled the industries that made this region strong. Mining is more than a job. It is grit, sacrifice, and courage. It is families who waited at the door for the sound of boots on the steps at the end of a long shift. It is generations who passed down the pride of providing for their community through some of the toughest work on earth. We remember the miners who lost their lives and those who endured lifelong health struggles. We celebrate the miners who are still working today. And we thank every family who stood behind them. Fayette County was built on the strength of our miners. Their legacy lives in every town, every hill, and every story passed from one generation to the next. Thank you to all who have worn the hard hat and walked into the dark so the rest of us could live in the light.
